Councilman Worsham asked if, when the mandamus tax of Brown & Co. had been paid, could the levy then be enforced against these who had not paid the tax. City-Attorney Walker responded that is uld, and it would go into the general Councilman Worsham-Is there not a pro vision in the charter prohibiting the collection f atax for a debt already paid? To this the city-attorney responded that the charter was silent on the subject, but he thought the tax could be collected from property-holders, even after the debt of Brown & had been satisfied. The returns of elections, as made by Sheriff Anderson, and as published in the APPEAL of Friday last, were read, received, and or-dered to be filed. City-Attorney Walker presented an ordinance to levy a tax to pay T. E. Brown to satisfy the mandamus of the United States court, and the judgment of T. E. Brown for Nicolson pavement purposes, so as to avoid the proceedings for contempt commenced in United States court against the mayor and general council of the city. He stated that the ordinance making the levy had been submitted to Colonel Randolph, attor-

"Do you think Tennessee will ever pay or settle her debt?" was asked.

"Most assuredly, provided her creditors act in harmony. Lack of harmony among them has been the only trouble so far, and this want rises from a state of affairs that the creditors generally do not undergtand, and by reason of their ignarance they are power-less to act in their own behalf."

The state of affairs spoken of, it was learned, referred to the fact that some of the outstanding bonds are liens on some of the railroads in the State, and respecting this complication Judge M'Kinnon did not wish to speak. It was learned, by the state approached by the association, and, respecting it the legal representative of the association and that it would be unfair to compare it with Tennes-would be unfair to compare it with Tennesacquainted with the standing of that sterling house, A. TENNESSEE'S STATE DEBT. iew York Bankers' Funding Associa tion Advocates New Bonds, to Run Forty Years, at Six Per Cent.

A meeting of the holders of Tennessee state bonds will be held to-day at the office of J. B. Manning, No. 14 Wall street. Among the signers to the call are E. D. Morgan & Co., Brown Brothers & Co., Eugene Kelly and others. who represent holders of large amounts of the bonds, both in this country and abroad. The object of the meeting is to express disapprobation of the recent efforts made before the special session of the Legislature of Tennessee to secure the funding of the State's bonded indebtedness. A proposition for adjusting the same will be iscussed and possibly determined upon. As this meeting, to a certain extent, will be an arraignment or criticism of the labors of the Funding association, consisting of ex-Secre-tary M Culloch, Chas. Lamer, and other bankers equally prominent with those who have called the meeting for to day, a statement of what was done at Nashville during the recent session, as well as facts relating to the association, may be of interest. It will be remembered that through "The Funding association, United States, limited," a prop-osition, coming from the bondholders, was submitted to a session of the legislature that was specially called a few weeks ago. The principal representative of the association during the session was ex-Judge J. J. MacKinnon. From those who were present during the session were obtained the facts during the session were obtained the facts respecting its action, the receipt of the proposition and the financial condition of the State as relating to its bonded indebtedness.

State as relating to its bonded indebtedness. The instructions of the chief representative tation of the one proposition, namely, the funding of the bonds at sixty per cent., with interest at six per cent. for forty years. Judge MacKinnon's views of the sentiment of of the State upon the matter of debt and the reason the legislature failed to adjust the matter are as follows: "If by 'feeling in Tennessee' is meant the honest desire of the people to adjust their debt according to the utmost and best of their ability, I must say my judgment is they desire and intend make this adjustment. The only complete answer I can give as to why the legislature failed to adjust the debt is that given by the legislature itself. In Tennessee the legislature is a fairly representative body. It was especially convened to consider the subject of the debt, and when it assembled was asked FOR LOUISVILLE AND CINCINNATI. to pass upon an 'award,' or something s called, and made against it in this city. the proclamation convening the legislature, it was asked and required, in substance, to answer this award, 'yes or no.' Well, it indignantly answered 'no,' and in doing so, said, in the language of one of its prom members: 'Gentlemen and people of Tennessee, was ever so great an indignity heaped upon a proud people as that presented in the sublime spectacle of a sovereign State being marched under the lead of its high officials to have its rights arbitrated and determined by a coterie of New York bankers assembled in the garret of an obscure building of that city, which has robbed us for years and years. And now, to cap the climax on all this degradation, we are called here and muzzled, as it were, and asked to affirm that infamous award. In my opinion that award was the first mischief toward a settlement with Tennessee." As that award was not accounted or confirmed the epresentative of the Funding association Ex-Judge M Kinnon, submitted the proposi-tion of his principals in behalf of the bond-holders. It was embraced in the draft of a bill introduced into the legislature, which provided briefly for the funding of the bonds at sixty per cent. of their face and accrued interest. The new bonds to run forty years, with interest at six per cent., payable annual ly. Provisions were made whereby the legislature should secure the bonds, and also the prompt and positive payment of interest and orincipal.

"This law," says the framer, "is the only one I have seen or read that gives the holder of State bonds a positive and certain security for the payment of his bonds and the interest upon them. All other laws under which State bonds have been issued and are now outstanding, except, perhaps, Louisiana and Santh Carolina, give the bondholder no security whatever. They merely pledge the faith and credit of the State, and this, we know from experience, is no security at all. The value of a State bond depends more upon the character of the law that authorizes it than it does on plighted faith that may be withdrawn at will. What the association seeks is a well-secured bond for those it represents. A large amount of American State county, city, town and railroad bonds now in default are held in Europe, and, to a great extent, by people who can illy afford to lose their interest, much less the principal. Any one's good sense must show them that these bondholders can do little individually or collectively toward enforcing their bonds. It has, therefore, long been desired in Europe that some repre sentative organization should be formed in this country through which the poor, frauded creditors abroad might appeal with a unity of action and purpose to the proper powers for the vindication of their rights. To supply that want and restore the credit of the cauntry at home and abroad our associa-tion was formed." "This is the view of it you express in answer to those who may assert that the asso-ciation interferes with affairs that do not concern it?" asked the reporter. "Precisely; at the same time this is not a charitable institution. It will have expenses, and much labor will be necessary to accomplish its plans. I do not know what its charges will be; but suppose, for example, that instead of money the association should It was asked if Tennessee did not fund her debt some few years ago, and what assurance could be obtained that if it is now funded, MacKinnon, "and which the association pro-poses as a security for the new funded bonds, there is no possible way for the State to repu-diate or refuse to pay. One of the greatest troubles with investors grows out of the fact that they do not know what legislation is necessary to constitute a valid and positively collectable bond. "It has always been a matter of astonishment to me that the stock exchange or its examining committee has not before taken up and investigated this subject, and then b resolution prohibited the sale on its floor of bonds of States or other bonds that are not properly secured by legislation. Had the exchange or its committee done so, the public would not have been victimized, as has hap-

known to the line of goods, and will be sold at wonderfully low prices. Citizens and strangers will find it to their interest to visit the New York had been considered by the millions for all conceivable purposes. These bonds neither had, nor now have, the slightest security legislation or otherwise. They were sold as promises only, and now constitute the mis-fortune of those who paid their money for "Do you think Tennessee will ever pay
